

SECRETED HUMAN PROTEINSABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Secreted proteins can be identified using a method which exploits the ability of microsomes to modify proteins post-translationally. Nineteen human secreted proteins and full-length cDNA sequences encoding the proteins have been identified using this method. The proteins and cDNA sequences can be used, inter alia, for targeting other proteins to the membrane or extracellular milieu.